State Lures War Historian

Among the several hundred thousand visitors who come to view Virginia's historic shrines each year, none is more interested and enthusiastic than the Civil War "fan." Henry Hill at Manassas National Battlefield Park, Marye's Heights at Fredericksburg National Military Park, Fort Harrison at Richmond National Battlefield Park, the Crater at Petersburg National Military Park, and the scenes of Lee's Surrender to Grant at Appomattox Courthouse National Historical Monument, are regularly visited by by thousands who come to view the scenes made famous in the struggle of 1861-65.

Manassas National Battlefield Park is a particularly interesting Civil War area. Here on July 21, 1861, was fought the opening battle of the Civil War and here 13 months later a signal Confederate victory led to Lee's invasion of the north. The 1600 acres within the present park boundary include the most significant portions of the fields on which the two battles were fought. On Henry Hill, the most prominent site within the park, stands the well known equestrian statue of General Thomas Jonathan Jackson, located on the approximate spot where Jackson received the sobriquet "Stonewall." Several monuments and a number of narrative historical markers point out to the visitor areas of particular interest on Henry Hill.

The museum at Manassas National Battlefield Park is an important feature in the park's interpretive program. The installation of a number of new museum exhibits and interpretive devices was started in January and is expected to be completed by late spring. The new exhibits, housed in a modern fireproof building, will feature a number of novel methods of presentation. An electric map, photomurals, a diorama, and electric projectors will be used in graphically portraying highlights of the two battles fought at Manassas (Bull Run).

Battlefield relics, historical documents and pictures will be presented in such a way as to develop various phases of the interpretive story in narrative sequence.

Manassas National Battlefield Park is located in Prince William County, five miles north of the town of Manassas, Va., U. S. Highways 29 and 211 intersect State Highway 234 at the park boundary.

Appomattox Wins Thriller In Tournament

In as fine a baseball game as has ever been played in Virginia semi-pro circles, Appomattox defeated Langley Field, 2 to 1 in eleven innings last night in the State Semi-Pro Tournament in Charlottesville.

Appomattox, undefeated in three tournament games, now will meet the Roanoke Colonial Club in Charlottesville Friday night at 7:30, in the tournament semi-finals.

"Specs" Garbee went th eleven inning route on the mound for Appomattox. He gave up a total of eight hits, but was in control all the way and had one of the best pitching jobs of his long and colorful career. The lone run scored off him resulted from an error.

In the eighth inning, Sf. Clair doubled and scored on a single by Harry Tucker for the first run. In the third Langley Field had gone out in front, 1 to 0.

Jim Cobb, local third baseman, was safe on an error in the eleventh inning. Putney laid down a bunt to advance him, and when the Langley catcher threw wild to second base, Cobb came all the way home with the winning talley.

St. Clair, Tucker and Garbee led the hitting for Appomattox.

Appeal For Big Vote In Reforendum

"Vote your own way, but by all means vote," was the final appeal made today to flue-cured tobacco growers by Bennett Harding, County A. C. A. Chairman in urging all eligible farmers to participate in the marketing quotas referendum on Saturday, July 23.

"Congress has made it possible for farmers to decide whether or not they want marketing quotas on flue-cured tobacco for 1950 and also for 1951 and 1952. It is up to us to go to the polls and state our preference. By adjusting supply to demand marketing quotas can help growers secure better prices for the tobacco they produce," he said.

If quotas are approved, individual farm acreage allotments for 1950 will be about the same as the 1949 allotment for any farm which has produced up to 75 per cent of its allotted acreage in any one of the past three years.

During 1946, 1948 and 1949, flue cured growers have been producing crops under marketing quotas approved by over 97 per cent of the growers in a referendum in 1946.

Every person who has an interest in the 1949 crop of flue-cured tobacco as owner, tenant, or share cropper is entitled to vote in the referendum but no person is entitled to more than one vote even though he produces tobacco in two or more communities, counties, or states.

Mr. Harding said, "I believe it is up to us to show our interest by going to the polls and voting one way or the other. This is the democratic way of deciding this important issue, and I urge that every flue-cured tobacco grower in the county, go to his community voting place on Saturday, July 23, and vote in this referendum."

Polls will be open from 8:00 A. M. to 5:00 P. M., at Chap Voting Precinct.
